HERITAGE

Roman military camp Gračine

When the Romans quelled the resistance of belligerent Illyrians, Dalmatians, and Pannonians in 9 AD they started building roads, bridges, and fortresses. One of the smaller military camps which served as accommodation for one cohort of 400 soldiers and one hundred members of cavalry was located in Ljubuški. Most researchers assume that the camp was located on the site Gračine, four kilometers southwest from today's town center.

HERITAGE

Archeological museum Humac
